HHIA Trying for Non-Profit Status

Currently, HHIA operates under the laws of Missouri as a benevolent association. HHIA has been organized as such since 1927. However, because of tax advantages, the board members have looked into becoming a non-profit organization. If HHIA operates as a non-profit organization, people and businesses that donates items or money can be eligible for tax deductions for their donations to HHIA. Also, items that HHIA purchases would not be subject to state or federal sales taxes. This can represent savings to HHIA for expenses such as those incurred for the house tour and other ongoing expenses. This may also encourage donations to HHIA by individuals and businesses. To become a non-profit organization, HHIA must first dissolve as a benevolent association. To do this, a vote must take place at a regularly scheduled meeting whereby seventy-five percent (75%) of those attending must vote to dissolve HHIA as a benevolent association. This will allow HHIA to file the necessary paperwork to become incorporated as a non-profit organization. This vote will take place on June 2nd at the regular organization meeting.

New kid in town

We had dinner recently at the newly opened restaurant, IRON BARLEY, located 3 doors north of Bates on Virginia. The mussels and jumbalaya were superb. They offer an eat in or carry out menu. Give them and some of the many local eating establishments a try.

Think flowers . . .

HHIA has made a sizable monetary donation to the local gardening effort to purchase some annuals for the pots around the neighborhood. While covering most, it is not enough to cover all of the cost of the flowers. If you would like to make a donation, please send a check to:

Garden help

You've seen him, you love him. He is like the mailman—"rain or snow or dark of night . . ." Tim Bolt is always there digging, watering and planting. HHIA is giving him a huge pat on the back and also has hired Mike and Pam Riley to help with the watering and weeding for the summer. Under Tim's direction, the number of gardens and pots has significantly increased, beautifying Holly Hills to unprecedented levels.

All the new plantings and existing plantings take a little more time and TLC and we thank Mike and Pam for agreeing to work with HHIA.

If you see Tim around, tell him thanks. It all started there.
